Cancer: Are There Good Treatment Alternatives?

By Gabriel Adams

If you or one of your loved ones has cancer, you probably know all too well what the conventional treatment for cancer is. Often called by cynics the cut, burn, and poison method, conventional treatments are basically limited to surgery, radiation, and chemotherapy.

Even though many thousands of individuals have spent countless millions of dollars over the past few decades campaigning for the cure for cancer, we're no closer. In fact, cancer deaths are on the rise. Perhaps, though, it's because we're looking for the cure for cancer in the wrong place!?

Paracelsus is credited to have said that "All that mankind needs for good health... is provided by God in nature... the challenge is to find it." Perhaps if we want to find the cure for cancer, we need to be looking at what God gave us for good health.

The idea that health can be achieved without drugs is not just a hypothesis, either. There is a large amount of scientific research proving that various nutritional substances can have amazing effects on disease, even cancer. Take for example phytonutrients. Newsweek Magazine actually ran a front page article on how phytonutrients had been found to necrose cancer cells.

Other good examples are glyconutrients and antioxidants. Scientific studies have documented was better results with natural substances such as these than the medical community can even hope to get.

The bottom line is: The medical community is not acting like they really want to find the cure. If you have cancer, it's up to you to do the research and find natural substances that can help you fight the cancer effectively and naturally. Do remember, though, that it's illegal to market a natural product as something that cures disease. The drug companies have a monopoly on the word cure - even though it seems that they are not very good at it!

Cancer Treatment Centers: Taking Care Of Your Mind, Body And Spirit!

By John Wellington

If you or any one of your loved ones is diagnosed with cancer, there are a number of cancer treatment centers located all over the country. These cancer treatment centers offer a whole range of treatments, both traditional and holistic, to help treat not only cancer but also the body, mind and spirit too. A number of cancer treatment centers conduct research on an ongoing basis, and patients can take part if they qualify in a series of clinical trials. There are new cancer treatments that are developed continually, and once research has advanced to where trying it on humans is warranted, clinical trials are conducted. Great results are being seen with new cancer treatments; in comparison to the past when some types of cancer were considered as a death sentence are currently being treated successfully and hence patients can enjoy living cancer free due to this continual research.

Today cancer treatment centers are easily accessible to everyone located in many metropolitan areas. A number of them are affiliated with large university based hospitals, and provide the latest technology available to treat different types of cancers. These types of facilities are also research based and offer several new treatment alternatives to participants in a range of ongoing studies. If for any reason one of these major cancer treatment centers are not within a reasonable distance, or not accessible due to other limitations, one can receive treatment through local oncologists and cancer treatment centers. These also have good facilities, and can provide the cancer patient with professional care and support. Cancer treatment centers vary in the types of services they offer, for instance it can be traditional or alternative treatment based, and the corresponding fees may also differ. You can either find a cancer treatment center within your means as well as those that provide additional amenities and have a more non-traditional approach. Those seeking other upscale private facilities that offer gourmet organic meals, natural herbal spa treatments, and additional pampering services to the cancer patient can also be found along with deluxe room accommodations. Such type of non-traditional cancer therapies help the patient recuperate and enjoy living again.

Cancer treatment centers are no more just sterile hospital environments that offer stale food, and stiff sheets. Comfort is of utmost important for all cancer patients, physically, emotionally, and spiritually. Cancer patients who are in search of a cancer treatment center can look up online for different alternatives, where a range of cancer treatments are discussed, plus other considerations such as diet and nutrition, and spiritual health. Cancer treatment centers all share the same goal, to offer the best care possible, to provide continual support to cancer patients and their families, and turn what can be a distressing situation into a more optimistic experience.
